'Magic-Like Device at New Burlington Proves Friend to Tenants.

The embarrassments of answering the doorbell when attired only in negligee are removed by a new device known as the "Servidor," which has been installed in all the apartments of the New Burn Apartment hotel in Vermont ave-

This device is used for the first time in the United States in the New Burlington. All the petty difficulties of going to the door at inconvenient times are obviated by the device, which is so are obviated by the device, which is so simple that it cannot get out of order. The doors to which the "Servidor" is attached are double panelled. Between the panels are upper and lower compartments, the former allowing room for clothing to be pressed or shoes to be shined, and the latter providing space for the delivery of cake ice and ice water in thermos bottles.

When a suit is to be pressed or other work done, the occupant of the apartment unlocks the inside door of the "Servidor" and places the articles to be removed in the compartment. The beliboy is called on the telephone and unlocks the curtile door takes the conunlocks the outside door, takes the contents away, and replaces them when the without seeing or be-

Another important feature of the doors is a newly patented ventilating device which allows a current of air to pass through the door, an ingress being furnished at the bottom and an escape at the top. This attachment may be shut off and the entrance or escape of air prevented.

materials in Spain has been officially recognized by the Spanish government Officials are considering the expediency of drawing on the national treasury to pay the users of paper an amount equal to the advance in price. This would make paper practically the same price as it was before the shortage.

This information is contained in a statement to this government from Con-sul General Carl Baily Hurst, stationed at Barcelona, Spain. The plan under con-sideration is in the form of a credit which is expected to relieve the paper famine. The entire advance on paper since the war would be borne by the government. After the war or such time when the in-dustry returned to a normal condition the government would levy a small tax on paper for a number of years until the treasure had been reimbursed for the

SUBMARINE PROTESTS SCOUTED BY DIPLOMA

Believes Naval Information Will Influence Political Heads.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON. (Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper

No interference by the British with American mails, no matter how greatly and demands by any form of reprisal, not because of British influence, but because of the representations made to the political heads of the United States These statements were made to me by a diplomatic personage whose sources of information are excellent, and I am inclined to think that they express the views of the British foreign office. The American staff officers whose duty it s to look ahead and plan possible future wars do not propose to permit their political superiors to commit the United States, now a neutral, to a course of action which would hopelessly cripple her operations if she ever became a belligerent against a great power. Their view is that it is better for America to which do her no real harm, rather than use her present position of commanding fare which the United States could not herself hold to in a great war without serious and perhaps fatal risks, That is the gist of the diplomat's comment, based, he said, upon information from

U Boat Power to Diminish.

"The view of your naval experts as I understand it," this man said, "hoids strongly that the United States must not agree to any diminution of the rights of the submarine to be treated by neutrais as an ordinary airship; at least not until the success is demonstrated of the measures taken for detecting the throbbing of a motor under the sea at a distance of some miles and ascertaining its distance from the recording instruments, which, if perfected, will doom the submarine as an important weapon. The reason America was bound to reject the united note of the allies demanding that belligerent submarines be refused entry Funeral services for Orin Samuel Shaw to neutral harbors is that in a war with But it is most unlikely that such war fare can be effectively carried on unless the submarines can enter neutral ports, and at least once replenish their fuel supply sufficiently to return home across the Atlantic. should not help combatants, as Germany asks you to do?

"The point of view which your War Department chiefs have urged on the government regarding the censorship, I understand, il, this: In a war with a great power, they say, it would be recessary for the United States to manugurate the strictest sort of a mail censorship. sary for the United States to inaugurate the strictest sort of a mail censorship. The polyglot character of the American population insures that great numbers of alien enemies would be at large, no matter with whom the war might be; too many of them to intern, probably, so your case should be more difficult even than that of Britain. The opportunities to convey military and naval information to the enemy from your country would be immense unless a strict censorship were imposed upon all outgoing and incoming foreign mails, and this you would immediately do; the experience of all the belligerents in this has shown such a belligerents in this has shown such a course to be necessary. But in so doing course to be necessary. But in so doing you would cause the same vexations and grievances in neutral countries that have resulted from the British censorship; and you will be careful, if your military advisers have their way, how you do anything now while you are a neutral, that will bind you to the impracticably strict rules of international law concerning the inviolability of first-class neutral mail

Military Necessity.

My informant here discussed possible instances which might arise in wars between the United States and certain powers when military necessity wodlu force America to break the rules upon whose sanctitity she now verbally insists, and he added, "So you will do nothing; even if Roosevelt were President he would have to bow to this military and naval opinion I have mentioned, Perhaps the same considerations to some extent apply to the British 'Black Lists'.
